GOP Women to Watch

Gov. Jan Brewer (AZ)—succeeded Janet Napolitano, who left the statehouse to serve as Obama's Homeland Security secretary; standing for election to a full term; primary Aug. 24. Brewer's approval ratings have increased despite criticism from President Obama ... of the controversial new immigration measure she signed into law. She does not back down easily. Her latest video, replying to critics is going viral.

Elizabeth Emken—running for U.S. Congress, CA-11; primary Jun. 8. On the radar for GOP Young Guns, Emken spent the last 13 years in the halls of Congress as a mom and a leader of [the] nation's largest science and advocacy organization devoted to the public health emergency of autism.

The mama grizzlies of the GOP are just starting to roar. And voters are taking notice.

Dear Friend,

Before I decide on a candidate, I want to know their core beliefs. Now that I am a candidate myself, I want to make sure you know what I believe about my faith, my country and some of the issues that help define me.

While we may not always agree on every issue, you can count on me to be honest with you about where I stand and to always be available to discuss issues and solutions. If you have any questions, please call me at (925) 786-1297 or email me at info@emken2010.com.

Thank you!

P.S. You can find me on the ballot under "U.S. Representative, 11th District." Please vote June 8th!

Faith

I am a committed Christian, richly blessed in so many ways. Life's struggles have never broken my faith – in fact they have made it stronger. I believe the guiding hand of God has directed and blessed our nation since its founding, leading us to do great things, overcome great challenges and make this earth a better place.

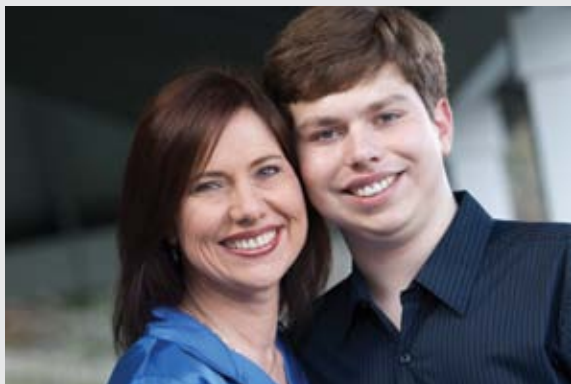

Freedom and the 2nd Amendment

I support the 2nd amendment and oppose any attempts to weaken it. My father is a long time member of the NRA, and I was raised around firearms. Our constitutional rights protect our freedoms and all of them are worth fighting for.

Borders and Immigration

I oppose Amnesty. Rewarding people for breaking our laws is wrong. No one should work in the U.S. who is not here legally. Business owners need to obey the laws of this country. It is understandable that states like Arizona would move on their own to control their border, since the federal government has let us all down.

Family and Life

I am pro-life. I understand the passion on both sides of this issue, but being the mother of a special needs child has taught me the value of all life, as I've witnessed firsthand the effect my son's life has had on others. Every life is precious and deserves protection.

Taxes and Spending

I signed the Americans for Tax Reform "No New Taxes" Pledge. Higher taxes only feed bigger government. We need to hold Congress and the bureaucracy accountable for every dollar they spend; end the corrupt practice of trading votes for pork barrel projects; and eliminate agencies and programs that don't produce for the taxpayer.

Republican Elizabeth Emken. Right on the Issues. Right for us.
